

A wide-angle, high-angle photograph of Seoul, South Korea, at dusk. The sky is a mix of purple, pink, and blue. In the foreground, the traditional stone walls and gates of the Gyeongbokgung Palace are illuminated with warm lights. A modern, curved building with large glass windows is on the left. A busy road with light trails from cars and a green park area are visible in the middle ground. In the background, a dense cityscape with various buildings and a church with a tall spire is visible under the twilight sky.
